SOCKS AND THE CITY

The actress shows off her socks strolling in NYC

STYLE mavens are turning up their noses at Sarah Jessica Parker's latest fashion foray – designing socks to wear with heels!

The 47-year-old “Sex and the City” star started a trend when she wore the quirky combo on the hit HBO show back in the '90s. Now she's determined to revive the fad with her own line of stylish socks, but pals predict it will be a bust.

“SARAH MIGHT HAVE BEEN ONE OF the most imitated and admired style icons 10 years ago, but that's not the case anymore,” an insider tells The ENQUIRER.

“And this socks-with-heels obsession will only damage what fashion credibility she has left.”

As TV peacock Carrie Bradshaw, Sarah made Manolo Blahnik heels a household name. But the mother of three's socks-with-heels look didn't have the same staying power.

“Now she wants to make one more push to see if she can turn it into a craze,” said the source.

“She's already designing her own line of socks, and she's even got her 3-year-old twin girls Tabitha and Loretta helping. It's great for mommy-daughter bonding, but Sarah really needs to put this sock business to rest.”

While Sarah is widely regarded as a fashion icon, few people realize that “Sex and the City” stylist Patricia Field played a major role in her fashion evolution, according to the source.

“Without Patricia, Sarah didn't have a clue,” said the insider, “and her socks-with-heels trend will just never take off the way she hopes. It's just too childish for today's fashionistas.”

MOVE over, Honey Boo Boo ...your mama wants to steal the spotlight!

“Here Comes Honey Boo Boo” matriarch Mama June has been losing weight – a LOT of it – and she thinks she's ready to make it big in Hollywood, sources tell The ENQUIRER.

June Shannon – mom to TLC's breakout star, 7-year-old Alana Thompson – showed off her leaner figure at the GLAAD Media Awards in New York City on March 16. Once tipping the scales at 365 pounds, the 33-year-old has dropped 115 of them and clearly enjoyed being the center of attention.

“JUNE LOVES THE TASTE of fame she's getting, and she loves the idea she can make her dreams come true,” a friend told The ENQUIRER.

“She's lived vicariously through Alana's beauty pageants and figures this is her time to shine.”

“Here Comes Honey Boo Boo,” which follows Mama June, Alana and the rest of their wacky redneck clan in rural Georgia, has been a ratings bonanza for TLC. Thanks to the show's success, June has already inked a two-book publishing deal to write a family biography and a cookbook.

“June says she's looking better and feeling more confident than she ever has in her life,” the friend continued. “She put out feelers to compete on ‘Dancing with the Stars’ this season, and she's been pitching a spinoff reality show where she ditches Georgia and moves to Hollywood – like a real-life Beverly Hillbilly.

“She even believes she could be an actress. She sees plus-size gals like Melissa McCarthy becoming big stars and figures, ‘Why not me?’”

But June's unsophisticated ways may keep her off the A-list, says the friend.

“This is a woman who feeds her family road kill for dinner. I don't know how she would go over at a ritzy restaurant like Spago.”

BRITNEY COVERS UP ...AT LAST!

After ENQUIRER's exposé,
pop tart dons underwear

LOOKS like Britney Spears got the message! After The ENQUIRER reported that fellow soccer moms were outraged when Brit bared her butt at her sons' game, the 31-year-old singer covered her buns and strapped on a brassiere.

"Thank you, thank you, thank you for putting the word out on Britney," said an insider.

"Some soccer parents were wondering whether she even owned a bra. But now Britney's made it a point to be obvious she was wearing one – her tank top was so skintight that the outline of her bra was plain to see."

AS THE ENQUIRER REPORTED, the "Scream & Shout" singer nearly got banned from the kiddie soccer games after she wore a see-through, flowing sundress – and no undergarments – to cheer on Jayden, 7, and Sean, 6, at a match in Calabasas, Calif.

With one gust of wind, Brit's flimsy dress became an X-rated spectacle at the March 10 family event.

"Britney is a parent who's supposed to be watching her kids play soccer, but she comes to the games dressed like a stripper," sniffed one irritated onlooker.

"It's inexcusable, and quite honestly, she should apologize to the other parents on the team."

While the pop princess is notorious for flashing her private parts, she cleaned up her act for her sons' game the following week.

"Britney also wore Daisy Duke-style shorts that were still way too short and tight, but at least she's finally making an effort to cover up on the soccer field," the insider noted.

The former "X Factor" judge – who's been dating researcher David Lucado, 27, since splitting with former fiance/agent Jason Trawick – was joined by her ex-hubby/baby daddy Kevin Federline, 34, his galpal Victoria Prince, 30, and their 1-year-old daughter Jordan at the March 17 match.

"It's about time someone told Britney to cover up," added the source.

"If she doesn't learn how to dress appropriately now, her kids may be so embarrassed that in the future they'll beg her to stay away from their games!"

OBAMA'S DATE NIGHT WITH EXOTIC BEAUTY

Michelle's livid over foreign affairs fiasco

FIRST lady Michelle Obama is furious that her "charmer in chief" hubby has struck up a cozy new friendship with the newly crowned Miss Israel.

White House sources say Michelle was "fit to be tied" when she learned that the president had his staffers specifically request that the gorgeous 21-year-old, Yityish "Titi" Aynaw, be invited to a March 21 state dinner held in his honor in Israel – while she was back home in Washington, D.C.!

In the lead-up to the gala dinner, hosted by Israeli President Shimon Peres at his residence in Jerusalem, the Miss Universe contestant admitted meeting Obama, 51, would be "a dream come true," and described him as her role model.

The Ethiopian-born beauty, who was raised in Israel by her grandparents after her parents died, told reporters she got the invite because "I'm the first black Miss Israel to be chosen and [Obama] is the first black American president."

And it appears that pretty Titi wasn't disappointed by the meeting.

"HE'S AN EXCITING MAN, A WORLD-CLASS HUNK, charming and an extraordinary gentleman," she told an Israeli publication. And Obama was equally impressed with Titi, telling her she was "very beautiful" and adding that Michelle would love to be her height. (She's nearly 6 feet tall!)

And if all that weren't enough to send Michelle's head spinning, it turns out that Titi looks like "Scandal" actress Kerry Washington, who – as The ENQUIRER reported last April – was barred from the White House because of her "flirty" relationship with the commander in chief.

Kerry, 36, shot to the top of 49-year-old Michelle's "watch list" after she was appointed to the President's Committee on the Arts and Humanities, an honorary post that brought her in contact with the president.

Not long after that, we reported that Michelle flew into a fury after photos of her hubby's flirty behavior with Thailand's stunning prime minister, glamorous Yingluck Shinawatra, "humiliated" her in front of the world, sources said.

"Now on the international hit parade is lovely Miss Israel," said the source. "She's made no secret in press reports how much she admires Barack, calling him very powerful and 'charismatic' to reporters."

At the dinner, it was reported that Titi was going to urge the president to release Jonathan Pollard, a former United States intelligence analyst serving a life sentence in a North Carolina prison for spying for Israel.

"It's very possible Barack could ask her to come to D.C. to discuss the issue further," added the White House insider. "That's probably not going to sit well with Michelle!"

DON RICKLES' pals fear the 86-year-old stand-up legend is on his way out, but the comic angrily denies it and declares: "I'll die when I die!"

As shocking ENQUIRER photos show, the famed insult comedian appeared frail, pained and disoriented when he recently stepped out on the town with friends.

Confronted about his health on March 22 outside Beverly Hills' Spago, the rickety-looking funnyman shot back: "Do you think I have *ing Alzheimer's disease? I'm fine!" and he insisted he wasn't ready to die.

But a concerned source confided: "Despite what he says, Don is not fine. He's very frail and feeble."

"WHEN HE'S SITTING AROUND with pals, he'll appear to become disoriented and disconnected from the conversation.

"He also has trouble walking and has to be supported as he totters around town."

On March 21, a shuffling Rickles was photographed with his buddy Regis Philbin leaving the West Hollywood restaurant Madeo.

Regis had a protective arm around the comic, who looked ready to collapse.

Just days earlier on March 12, dinner patrons were shocked at how feeble Rickles appeared as he dined with Bob Newhart at The Grille on the Alley in Beverly Hills.

"Don seems to be using his crazy expressions from past stand-up acts to cover for his current condition. When he's having a hard time walking, he tries to be funny by acting like a zombie or making a zany face – it's a distraction from anyone really seeing what a hard time he's having. He probably hopes they write it off as him being silly," said one eyewitness.

HERMAN and Candelaria Zapp's four children never ask: "Are we there yet?"

That's because the intrepid family has been on a round-the-world road trip for 13 years – in a car that was built in 1928.

The journey has taken them through South America, North America, Australia, Asia and now Africa, with Europe the next destination.

The adventurous couple has visited more than 40 countries, logged nearly 200,000 miles and along the way had four children, all with different nationalities – Pampa, 10, was born in Greensboro, N.C., Tehue, 7, in Argentina, Paloma, 4, in Canada, and little Wallaby, 3, who was named for an indigenous critter of his birthplace – Australia.

And while many may think the world is a dangerous place, the Zapps disagree. They've learned that people everywhere are more than willing to open their homes – and their hearts – to them.

"We have already been in more than 2,500 homes – Amish, Muslims, Jews, rich people, poor people, you name it," Herman, 44, told The ENQUIRER.

"And even though people look different and pray different, we all have the same dream – to have a home and someone to love. In the end, we are all the same."

Herman, a former technology specialist who was born in San Francisco, moved to Argentina to work on his grandfather's cattle ranch when he was a boy. While there, Herman and Candelaria, now 42, met as children. They married in 1996 and both had the same dream – to see the world.

"MY GRANDFATHER KNEW THAT WE wanted to travel and never stop," said Herman. "So he gave me the old Graham-Paige car he used on his farm and told me, 'If you want to get far, you need to go slowly.'" For the Zapps, that's 40 miles per hour – the fastest the 84-year-old car can go.

The couple set off from Patagonia, Argentina, in 2000, and by 2004 they'd made it to Alaska. They returned to Argentina for only two weeks before they took off again.

They have been on the road ever since, with a trip around South America between 2005 and 2007, then Central America, the U.S. and Canada until 2009, and on to Australia, New Zealand, Japan and Asia.

The Zapps sleep in or around a tent set up next to their car, but more often than not they find a friendly local who will put them up for the night.

"Almost 90 percent of the time we stay in people's homes," said Herman.

"Once, in the Philippines, we were in a family's home which had only one room. They gave us their only piece of meat, their only bed and when we left they apologized for not having more."

The children are home-schooled by their parents through an online service that gives them a regularly updated curriculum, but the world is their

COLIN FARRELL QUIT SKIRT-CHASING!

COLIN FARRELL has gone from King of the Playboys to Dad of the Year! The hunky actor has told pals he's no longer free on weekends for "wine, women and song" because he prefers the company of his two sons — James, 9, and Henry, 3.

The 36-year-old "Dead Man Down" star has worked hard over the past six months finalizing arrangements with the boys' two moms, Kim Bordenave and Alicja Bachleda-Curus, so he could maximize his time with the youngsters.

Now the Irish heartthrob goes to Los Angeles almost every weekend from wherever he is to spend quality time with the boys. He's even pared down his schedule to make more room for them, revealed a close friend.

"HE'S REALLY MADE A HUGE EFFORT to make this work," said the friend. "And although the boys' moms have had their fair share of differences with Colin, they are very happy that he's taking a more active role in raising them."

"With the help of nannies, Colin looks after James and Henry on weekends and says he's the happiest he's ever been."

Colin's hard partying is legendary even by Hollywood standards, and he has been linked with some of the hottest women on the planet, including his "Alexander" co-star

Angelina Jolie, as The ENQUIRER reported.

But now he has matured and says his boys are making him a better man.

The actor's eldest son James was diagnosed with Angelman syndrome, a genetic disorder that causes intellectual and developmental problems. For Colin, the youngster's special needs became a turning point in his own hell-raising life.

"What my first son James did was allow me to care for something in this world when I couldn't care for myself," confessed Colin. "James saved my life."

Now clean-living Colin has swapped Guinness beer for green tea and vitamins, and the source says the doting dad even has an upbeat new motto: "Anything for the kids."

LEANN RIMES is putting her career on hold because she's terrified her marriage is in jeopardy.

The 30-year-old singer, who burst onto the country music scene with the No. 1 hit "Blue" when she was just 13, has only three concerts scheduled for the busy summer touring season — and friends say it's because she's afraid to leave her hubby, Eddie Cibrian, home alone.

"Summer is prime time for country singers to go out and play the festival and fair circuits, and LeAnn is giving up a fortune by not touring," said a friend. "She gets $75,000 a show, so she could easily make $2 million or more this summer. LeAnn is in demand as much as ever, but she turns down almost everything she's offered."

"She says Eddie doesn't like to go on the road with her, so she stays home."

PALS POINT OUT THAT LEANN HAS been a stressed-out mess since marrying TV actor Eddie, 39, in April 2011. The couple came under fire for hooking up while both were married to other people, and she was blasted in a best-selling tell-all by Eddie's ex, "Real Housewives of Beverly Hills" star Brandi Glanville.

Making matters worse, both Brandi and sexy waitress Scheana Marie Jancon say that they were involved with Eddie AFTER he started his Jessica Chastain was regaled with awards and critical praise for her performance in “Zero Dark Thirty”

SCREEN sexpot Eva Mendes is so jealous of Jessica Chastain's success, she's ordered her high-powered agent to go after the same roles, according to a Hollywood insider. “Eva's been almost obsessed with Jessica since she played the part of Maya in ‘Zero Dark Thirty,’ a role Eva wanted for herself,” a close friend told The ENQUIRER.

JESSICA, 36, WON RAVE REVIEWS, an Oscar nomination and a Golden Globe award for the role, and now sources say Eva wants to pursue more serious parts instead of just banking on her sex appeal.

The 39-year-old bombshell is said to be taking advice from boyfriend Ryan Gosling, who's convinced the “Girl in Progress” star to chase prestigious parts that can bring her an Oscar.

Since the two started dating in September 2011, friends say Ryan, 32, has given her “a complex” over her career.

“I think he is very controlling and tells her he thinks she can do better,” said the friend. “It is as if Eva lives to please Ryan and is desperate to impress him.”

The couple have already appeared in one serious drama together, “The Place Beyond the Pines,” in which Eva shows her acting chops playing a beautiful but complex character who's worn down by life. To further boost her career, Eva listened to Ryan and signed on with super-agent Hylda Queally – who also represents her rival Jessica.

“It's no coincidence that she's now with Hylda,” said the source. “Aside from Jessica, Hylda looks after Cate Blanchett and Marion Cotillard, so she knows her stuff.”

“Eva told Hylda to send her to whatever auditions Jessica attends. She's tired of being typecast as the love interest and wants to be a leading lady.

“But Eva's problem is she's just too sexy. She's got a real mountain to climb to really get away from bombshell roles.”

Even though the world's press just reported that the embattled couple have suddenly reconciled, nobody's told The Untold Story of WHY Rhea finally forgave Tubby Li'l Hubby for his wandering eye – so here's the naked truth! The facelift procedure – in which blood's drawn by needle from a patient, spun in a centrifuge, then combined with Restylane or Juvederm and re-injected into the face to stimulate collagen production to create new, unwrinkled skin – totally GROSSED out the rapper, 'Playbook' pals playful again as Bradley tops funnygal Jen!

LAUGH-A-MINUTE LAWRENCE! America marveled at the lightning-quick wit of young-'n-funny honey JENNIFER LAWRENCE when she flopped flat on her kisser at the Oscars, but bounced right back up cracking wise to claim her Best Actress prize – and the 22-year-old cutie's even scored guffaws from such showbiz giants as DAVID LETTERMAN, JAY LENO and "lecherous" JACK NICHOLSON – but here's my scoop on how "Silver Linings Playbook" co-star BRADLEY COOPER finally topped her...and won the last laugh! Working together again on an untitled movie in Boston, the chuckly duo, once again playing a couple in heat, had the cast and crew in stitches as they pulled endless pranks on each other – like the time Jennifer dunked her hands in freezing water just before jumping into bed for a love scene, making Bradley shriek like a girl when her icy paws clamped on his naked back! Said My SpyWitness: "Bradley howled and jumped out of bed as Jennifer collapsed with laughter. Production came to a standstill and the director called a time-out to allow her to compose herself – but when she finally did, she was in for a HUGE surprise!" Back in bed again, the twosome staged an intense kissing scene that ended as Bradley rolled on top of her and...YEEOW!...this time it was Jennifer who freaked, screaming, "What the hell is THAT?!" Bradley had finally...er, topped Miss Funnygal – secretly stuffing a giant-size plastic penis in his pants! Again filming came to a halt as everyone cracked up – with the notable exception of director DAVID O. RUSSELL, who was not amused, and made the pair declare a truce and stop wasting time with silly stuff!

and that's not all: Kanye's still suffering over the sudden death of beloved mother DONDA WEST, a retired university professor and his onetime manager, who died in 2007 after complications from a cosmetic surgery procedure. "But more than that, Kanye fears any potential risk while Kim's pregnant," said a friend. "Kim's promised him she'll refrain from doing anything else while she's carrying their child, but refuses to rule out cosmetic procedures in the future."

■ Amazing how hermit-esque, old-daddy comedian STEVE MARTIN hid the impending birth of his first child from everyone – except his fave bookstore's clerks, who figured it out! The 67-year-old star prepped for his new chapter in life by loading up on books about pregnancy and parenting, claiming he was researching a film role. But when he bought books on "becoming a dad over 50," and "parenting as an older person," salesgals at his local bookstore giggled – and got it! Not wanting to confirm the news aloud, Secret Steve put finger to lips, letting them know his blessed event was strictly confidential. "Your secret's safe with us," they assured him. "And you're going to be a great dad..."

■ DON'T BE GLUM – COFFEE'S ON KLUM! In a super hurry, supermodel HEIDI KLUM came screeching up to the BevHills Urth Caffé, parked her car, ran inside looking like a harried mom in a hurry – and was stopped cold by a line of four people. Said My SpyWitness: "Heidi begged the lady in front of her to let her move up, saying, 'Look, I've left my four kids out in the car with my mother, but she can't handle that bunch for long!' The lady was sympathetic and let her pass – but Heidi hustled right to the front of the line. The customers she'd passed started grumbling, 'Who does she think she is?' – and the first lady said, 'Hey, I just let her by me, that's all!'" But here's how it's done in Hollywood, gossip fans: Realizing she'd raised a ruckus, clever Klum kwickly koughed up a $100 bill and loudly told the cashier: "Please take care of these people behind me!" Moments later, as she shouted apologies, Heidi hustled out the door with two cups of java to give mom Erna some much-needed relief!

Grinning over his shoulder, Justin winked and assured her: "Don't worry, it won't be long!"

WILL SMITH has taken out-of-control Justin Bieber under his wing – and he even accompanied the young heartthrob on parts of his international tour to keep him in line.

The “Baby” singer has been on a downward spiral since breaking up with Disney starlet girlfriend, Selena Gomez, in late December, and his antics have his mom Pattie Mallette so worried, she’s reached out to “Men in Black” star Will for help, say sources.

“PATTIE HAS BEEN STRUGGLING TO figure out what’s the best course of action, and she realized that Will could be just what the doctor ordered,” said a source. “Justin and Will’s son Jaden are close friends, and he was with both of them in London in March, when Jaden was the opening act for some of Justin’s shows.

“Will started making Justin adhere to a strict curfew and limited his computer and TV time. Will also makes sure he doesn’t stay out too late and that he steers clear of shady characters and overaggressive groupies.

“Will works out with Justin, gives him a reading list of inspirational books and encourages the kid to keep a ‘vision board,’ where he can keep postings of his short- and long-term goals. And Justin already seems to have more focus.”

As The ENQUIRER recently reported, Pattie is afraid that her multiplatinum-selling son could be headed to rehab. In January, photos surfaced of Justin allegedly smoking pot with rapper pal Lil Twist. And as we exclusively reported in January, Justin cheated on then-galpal Selena with a Memphis teen who claimed she did the designer drug Ecstasy to make herself feel sexy.

Also, in early March, Justin showed up two hours late for a concert, was hospitalized on March 7 due to breathing difficulties and went ballistic on a photographer soon after.

Pattie’s worst fear is that “Will started making Justin adhere to a strict curfew and limited his computer time”

Justin, 19, will wind up like his dad, Jeremy, who was a boozing, brawling drug user and walked away from his family when Justin was a baby, according to an insider.

It seemed like Will’s influence was having a positive effect when Justin tweeted his thanks to the actor on March 10 for giving him a “great talk.”

But on March 18, Justin was reportedly kicked out of the Hotel Le Meurice in Paris. Although the hotel denied he was asked to leave, sources say he was bounced due to his attitude and the nuisance created by some of his fans.

“Justin’s getting the idea, but Will still has his work cut out for him,” said the source.

Justin has been close to the Smith family for a while. Jaden, 14, was featured on his pal’s 2011 song “Never Say Never” and Will, 44, is helping the pop singer transition into acting.

“Will even suggested to Justin that when his tour is over, he should come live at the Smith family’s L.A. compound for a few weeks,” the source added. “Justin’s mom is so grateful to Will for getting her son to shape up.”

FOR 16 years, Nashville stars Tim McGraw and Faith Hill have carefully crafted an image of a marriage made in country music heaven, but behind the scenes, a lot of hell has been going on!

In an exclusive investigation, The ENQUIRER has uncovered a trail of shocking marriage secrets – tears and lies, nasty fights and other women – that have rocked their wedded bliss!

“After Tim’s years of hard drinking, partying and skirt-chasing, Faith doesn’t trust him anymore and keeps him on a very tight leash,” a source told The ENQUIRER.

“As a result, Tim has been cut off from his Nashville music buddies, forced to stop drinking and made to work out instead!”

Tim and Faith, both 45, are country music royalty with eight Grammys and 80 million in album sales between them. They married in 1996 and have three daughters – Gracie, 15, Maggie, 14, and Audrey, 11 – but sources say their union nearly ended in 2008, when Faith laid down the law over Tim’s drinking, carousing and wild partying ways on the road.

“There was a huge confrontation and threat of divorce, and Tim folded. Now, he doesn’t miss the booze nearly as much as he misses the tight-knit bonds he once shared with his posse of male buddies,” a source told The ENQUIRER.

“FAITH HAS CUT HIM OFF FROM ALL his old drinking pals, because she’s afraid they will lead him back into his wild ways. But he longs to re-live his carefree days with his crazy crew. With a wife and three daughters, he has almost no male companionship at all, and it’s driving him crazy!”

The source continued: “Tim admitted that before he quit drinking, he would call home drunk and tell Faith he was going to be late, but she would have no idea what was really going on. He and his buddies would go out, flirt with the ladies, get into bar fights, you name it. He lied about the gory details of what his life had become.”

INVESTIGATION

Faith & Tim UNMASKED!

Country stars' marriage
ROCKED BY TEARS, FIGHTS, LIES AND OTHER WOMEN

Faith's insecurities are driving Tim crazy, says a source

Tim comes by his boozing honestly. The man he thought was his father, Horace Smith, was a hard-drinking, spouse-abusing truck driver in Louisiana. Later in life, he reconnected with his real dad, baseball star Tug McGraw – and realized what he'd missed by not growing up in a stable family.

Lies and many tears struck at Faith's childhood too. Given up for adoption at birth, she later learned her birth parents had gone on to marry and have another daughter, whom they kept.

There's no question that both Tim and Faith are committed to providing a stable home life for their kids.

"After they married, Faith made Tim promise that he wouldn't lie to her," an insider said, "and he's kept that promise. However, he's very crafty at manipulating situations to work in his favor by simply not telling her everything. Faith has caught Tim covering up some pretty significant things from her over the years, and it has taken its toll on her ability to fully trust him. A cover-up is the same thing as a lie to Faith.

"The fear that Tim will cheat is always in the back of her mind."

Tim is so afraid of his wife's jealous rages that he kept hidden from her the fact that he had continued his relationships with other women! Most notably, he kept in contact with Tyler Zarbo, the 23-year-old son of Kristine Donahue, the woman Tim was engaged to when he met Faith.

"He had promised Kristine he would be a father to the boy, and he kept his promise by staying in touch, but he never told Faith about it. He was afraid that her jealousy over Kristine would cause even more problems in their marriage."

Indeed, the marriage was on shaky ground throughout 2012, as Tim went on tour with old pal Kenny Chesney. Not only does Chesney have a reputation for drinking and chasing women, he and Tim have a history of mischief-making – including an infamous 2000 run-in with police in New York.

"The entire time they were on tour, Faith was phoning Tim, checking up on whether he was behaving himself," said the source.

"She cried tears knowing that just one drink could get Tim right back into his old whiskey habits."

Tim tempted fate, AND Faith, when he planted a long kiss on his 2010 "Country Strong" co-star Gwyneth Paltrow when she was receiving her Hollywood Walk of Fame star...while Faith and their girls looked on!

"Tim caught hell from Faith that night, and despite his protestations, she was convinced that something must have been going on between Tim and Gwyneth while they were on the set," said the insider. "Friends just don't kiss like that!"

Faith's jealousy was on display at a Lafayette, La., concert when a female fan grabbed Tim between his legs, and Faith instantly lashed out at her.

"When Tim is on the road without Faith, groupies throw themselves at him constantly. Women scream, cry, try every trick in the book to get to him, and a lot of them do end up backstage," said the source.

"But Tim knows how cheating can destroy a marriage, and he's not about to go there."

Still, a source says Faith's insecurities are driving Tim crazy – he's doing the best he can to keep her happy.

ENQUIRER KEEPS READERS YOUNG

CALIFORNIA MAN, 101, & wife, 91, haven't missed an issue in 30 years!

Lucille and Stephen Pilibos say The ENQUIRER is a great diversion from the day-to-day grind WANT the secret to staying young? Read The ENQUIRER!

That's the advice from 101-year-old Stephen Pilibos and his 91-year-old wife, Lucille. The spritely couple from Fresno, Calif., has been perusing the pages of The ENQUIRER for 30 years!

Stephen and Lucille say they first started reading The ENQUIRER in the early 1980s, after a family member gifted them with a subscription – and they haven't missed a single issue since.

"THE ENQUIRER HELPS us stay young," says Stephen, a lifelong fruit and vegetable farmer and real estate developer.

"I really enjoy reading the celebrity stories, especially the older celebrities of my era. But I also like the beach body and plastic surgery specials, as well as the Good Samaritan stories.

"The ENQUIRER is a great diversion from the day-to-day grind. We just love it!"

And Lucille says Stephen, her husband of 63 years, has first dibs when The ENQUIRER arrives in their mailbox.

"I always let him read it first because I know he enjoys it so much," says Lucille, a full-time housewife who has five children and six grandchildren with Stephen.

"But I always look forward to my turn when Stephen is finished because I find the medical column so insightful.

"And after we're finished reading The ENQUIRER from cover to cover, we give the old copies to friends – and they love it, too.

"We've tried to read similar competitor publications, but they're just not the same. So The ENQUIRER has been our go-to newspaper of choice.

"Keep up the good work, ENQUIRER!"

BLONDE AM

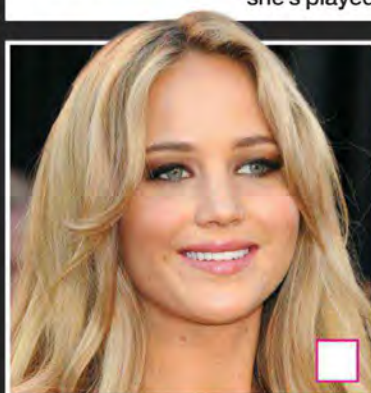

WHICH HAIR COLOR suits them BEST?

EMMA STONE Dyeing to go red? Emma is a gorgeous natural blonde. But from "The Help" to "The House Bunny" to "Easy A," she's played a carrot top.

RIHANNA Was she trying to be a "Good Girl Gone Bad"? Rihanna bombed in a bleached-to-the-max mane. As a brunette, the Grammy-winning babe doesn't need to hide behind an "Umbrella."

JENNIFER LAWRENCE Bingo on the jet-black hair! It's for Jennifer's role in "The Hunger Games: Catching Fire," but it's far more striking than the Oscar winner's natural honey blonde.

BRITNEY SPEARS
"Toxic" blonde locks helped the pop princess stand out at the "X Factor" judges' table. But now that she's toned down her tresses, the talented mother of two looks years younger.

BROOKLYN DECKER She's gone from modeling prom dresses to appearing on the "Sports Illustrated" swimsuit cover to acting, but Brooklyn's best as a bombshell blonde.

BITION

GENTLEMEN may prefer blondes but, as these photos show, Hollywood hotties who lighten their locks often come out looking worse for the wear. Here's our scorecard on Tinseltown beauties gone blonde.

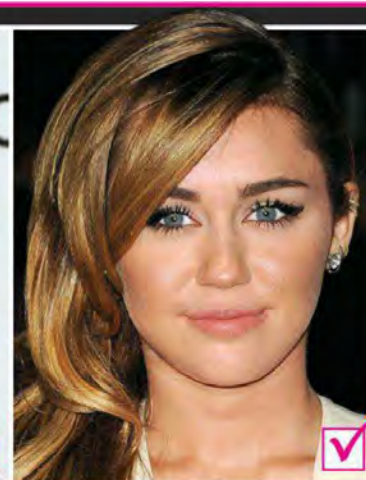

DEMI LOVATO After taking a walk on the wild-child side and going platinum blonde, the pop singer reverted to her natural dark hair color – and it zings!

ROSE MCGOWAN A rose by any other name may smell as sweet. But as a blonde, this Rose is a stinker! The “Charmed” star blooms as a redhead.

DAKOTA FANNING When she sticks to her natural blonde, the “Twilight Saga” star glows. Darker tresses overwhelm her delicate features and beautiful blue eyes.

MILEY CYRUS TV’s “Hannah Montana” hit a high note with a bouncy brown mane. But Miley’s chopped-up faux-Mohawk proves that it’s never better to curl up and dye.

PETA MURGATROYD When she whips her hair on “Dancing with the Stars” this season, Peta pops her partner with a bleached blonde mop. Darker is better for Peta.

JENNIFER ANISTON “Friends” don’t let friends overprocess. Stylists dyed Jen’s hair platinum blonde for a movie role, but let’s hope America’s sweetheart quickly goes back to her regular sunkissed locks.

Timberlake puts WORK BEFORE MARRIAGE

WIFE JESSICA

by Justin," said one insider. "Between the time he's spent in the studio finishing his album, rehearsing for his Grammy Awards performance, promoting the album and now prepping for his tour, they've seen each other very little since the beginning of the year.

"JESSICA HOPED THAT marriage would mellow Justin, but it hasn't. He treats their marriage like a license to put her aside and dive into his other interests."

In addition to his singing career, the ambitious former

JUSTIN TIMBERLAKE's workaholic ways are wrecking his marriage to Jessica Biel, say sources.

The "SexyBack" singer is so focused on his new album "The 20/20 Experience" and prepping for a tour with Jay-Z that Jessica is accusing him of putting his career first, the sources add.

boy-bander is an investor in the relaunched website MySpace, was recently named Bud Light Platinum's creative director, heads the Tennman Records label, backs a restaurant chain and has his own premium brand of tequila.

Justin, 32, and Jessica, 31, dated for five years before they married on Oct. 19 in a splashy destination wedding in Italy.

But as THE ENQUIRER has reported, they were suffering post-wedding blues, battling over Justin's wild nights out with his hard-partying bachelor pals.

THEY ATTENDED A SHOW TOGETHER

during London Fashion Week on Feb. 18, but recently Justin left Jessica waiting for 20 minutes before they caught "The Book of Mormon" on Broadway.

"When Jessica confronts him about being an absentee husband, Justin bellyaches that her nagging drives him further away," confided the source.

"Meanwhile, Jessica is fending for herself. She's shopping, meeting girlfriends for lunch, ordering in for dinner and watching cheesy reality TV shows.

"It's gotten to the point where Jessica refers to herself as a bored, lonely housewife. She's just praying that once Justin wraps up his tour, he'll start acting like a proper husband."

Katy COULDN'T TRUST womanizer Mayer

UNLUCKY-IN-LOVE Katy Perry gave boyfriend John Mayer the heave-ho because she caught the guitar-slinging Lothario cheating on her...AGAIN.

"Katy finally had enough of John's wandering eye," revealed a close source. "He's an incorrigible flirt who's constantly chatting up other women, asking them for their phone numbers so he can text them.

"SOMETIMES, HE WOULD EVEN ASK them out for drinks, and Katy got sick and tired of it."

The 28-year-old "I Kissed a Girl" songbird was first linked to the 35-year-old playboy last summer, less than a year after Katy and husband Russell Brand divorced.

It's been a rocky relationship, and horndog John was recently rumored to be getting cozy with pretty "Girls" star Allison Williams, who is NBC newsmen Brian Williams' daughter and the girlfriend of a close pal.

They were spotted together at a Manhattan fashion event in late January, and that was just about the last straw for Katy.

"Many of Katy's friends warned her that John couldn't remain faithful, but she didn't want to believe them," said the source.

"They split briefly in August, but Katy gave John another chance and now he's blown it.

"John has begged her to take him back, but Katy wants nothing to do with him anymore."

Liberace's ex-lover Scott JAILED IN CREDIT CARD SCAM

OFFICIAL
MUG SHOT

Scott Thorson
AKA Jess Marlow

Thorson documented his six-year relationship with Liberace
in his 1988 book

LIBERACE's former lover Scott Thorson might not get to watch the upcoming film "Behind the Candelabra" – the highly anticipated HBO flick about the flamboyant pianist – because he's in jail...again!

Thorson, 54, who wrote the book on which the new biopic is based, was arrested on Feb. 22 at the Ponderosa Hotel in Reno, Nev., and charged with four counts of first-degree burglary.

Deputy District Attorney Rebecca Druckman told The ENQUIRER that Thorson – who now goes by the name Jess Marlow – found a wallet containing credit cards and used them at several Reno businesses.

"AFTER HE PURCHASED SOME THINGS, he checked into the hotel and the victim was notified that somebody was suspiciously using his credit cards," said Druckman.

The cardholder went to the Ponderosa and informed them of the fraud, and the police were called.

Thorson was arrested, booked and held on $125,000 bail. A subsequent court hearing was scheduled for March 28. If convicted on the first-degree burglary charges, he could face several years in prison.

In 1988, a year after Liberace's death from AIDS, Thorson penned the book "Behind the Candelabra: My Life With Liberace," which documented his six-year romantic relationship with the flamboyant entertainer.

He said he learned that producer Jerry Weintraub was interested in the work in 2008, when he was previously behind bars for a drug-related robbery. The film, which is scheduled to air in May, stars Matt Damon as Thorson and Michael Douglas as Liberace.

Thorson, who is suffering from anal cancer, claims he wasn't appreciated by the filmmakers. He said he was snubbed by the cast and crew when he visited the set and received just a small amount of money for the use of the book.

"Now, Scott probably won't be out of jail before the show airs," added a friend. "And if he goes to prison, he could die behind bars."

WATCH
Patti!
Your Prince

Charming may not be as great as you think he is!

The ENQUIRER has learned that David Krause – the new beau of Bravo's "Millionaire Matchmaker" Patti Stanger – has a complicated past. During his 2002 divorce, the father of two was accused of trying to shortchange his ex-wife of child support – and in 2007, he was hit with a domestic violence charge by his former fiancée!

While Patti has a long list of rules for her wealthy clients in search of their soul mates, friends say the 51-year-old is throwing caution to the wind when it comes to her own romance with the 43-year-old mortgage banker.

"PATTI RUNS HER BUSINESS WITH a combination of tough love, no secrets and strict dating rules, but when it comes to her own life, all that advice goes out the window," said an insider. "After meeting David online last year, she's been so blinded by love that she's doing everything she tells her clients NOT to do."

In 2007, David was on the receiving end of a domestic violence restraining order which required him to stay at least 100 yards away from former fiancée Erin Futterer and her then-11-year-old daughter.

EXPOSED!

I have no idea what he is of doing!

In her application for the order, Erin said David was "not stable" and was "verbally and emotionally abusive." She also provided e-mails in which David admitted he'd been diagnosed with "a mental condition" that required him to take medication to "stabilize" his mood swings.

WHILE DAVID DID NOT

actually strike Erin, she stated: "I have no idea what he is capable of doing and I am afraid for my daughter and me...Bottom line is: I am scared of him."

And that wasn't the first time David had relationship troubles. According to court documents obtained by The ENQUIRER, David's ex-wife, Diane, alleged during their 2002 divorce that he "failed to care for" their two young children during overnight visits and "didn't have them groomed and ready for school in the morning."

What's worse, the documents, which were filed in California's Orange County Superior Court, imply that David was trying to work a lesser-paying job to circumvent a large child support payment. "[David] should not be allowed to change his employment, reducing his income from $7,000 per month to an alleged $2,500 to the detriment of the support

THELEVANGELIST Benny Hinn's son has spun out of control and is in desperate need of help, say sources.

The ENQUIRER has learned that 22-year-old Joshua Hinn has been busted twice within just nine months, and insiders say his faith healer dad needs to heal his own boy by getting him into much-needed anger-management courses.

THIS PAST FEBRUARY, JOSHUA WAS NABBED by Brazilian cops after allegedly beating up a deaf and dumb man who tried to approach his 60-year-old father during a rally.

The man was reportedly so badly beaten by Joshua and bodyguards that he needed hospital treatment, but sources say charges were dropped after Hinn's reps worked out an agreement.

of his children," Diane stated. A judge eventually cleared him of the allegations, ruling that he had NOT "intentionally depressed income in order to shrink his parental responsibility to support his children."

Never-married Patti, who's been wearing a pre-engagement "promise ring," has admitted she doesn't follow her own advice when it comes to matters of the heart — and that may prove to be bad for business.

The source added: "If Patti wants her clients to take her seriously, she's going to have to stop breaking her own rules and practice what she preaches."

Joshua's first bust was this past June 14 on a DUI charge in Tarpon Springs, Fla., and The ENQUIRER has obtained his shocking mug shot. He recently pleaded no contest to that misdemeanor charge and was sentenced to one-year probation and had his driver's license revoked for six months. He must also attend an alcohol education class and pay $483 in court costs.

"Josh thinks he can do whatever he wants because of who his

"At the very least, he needs anger management classes. I hope the DUI serves as a wakeup call."

JOSHUA'S PARENTS BENNY AND Suzanne recently married each other for a second time. Their previous 31-year union collapsed in divorce two years ago.

Advised the source: "Now that Benny has fixed his marriage, he needs to concentrate on his son."

COUNTRY LEGEND'S COMMON-LAW EX CLAIMS: 'GEORGE JONES IS A BIGAMIST'?

George was once famously wed to country superstar Tammy Wynette

SHAMEFUL TRUTH about Tammy Wynette's former hubby

Linda Dodson says she was never divorced from George

PART 1
(of 2)

More GEORGE JONES SCANDAL next week!

COUNTRY music legend George Jones has had a secret wife for more than 30 years – that's the incredible charge of Linda Dodson, who says the crooner is a bigamist because he never divorced her before marrying his current wife Nancy Sepulvado.

Linda says she hooked up with George after he split from his third wife, country legend Tammy Wynette, and carried on a rocky seven-year relationship with the hard-drinking Grammy winner before they parted ways in 1981. Incredibly, just two years after the breakup, George tied the knot with Nancy even though Linda says she was – and STILL is – his wife under Alabama common law. "It's time to set the record straight," Linda told The ENQUIRER in a world exclusive interview. "His wife Nancy acts like I was nothing to George, but I'm just as married to him as she is."

FOR THE FIRST TIME, LINDA, a 64-year-old from Sheffield, Ala., who lives on disability due to vision problems, is speaking openly about their tormented relationship in this sensational two-part ENQUIRER expose.

Her explosive revelations come just as the 81-year-old "He Stopped Loving Her Today" singer began his 60-date farewell tour to cap his celebrated career.

Linda says she first met George while he was visiting her sister Charlene and her songwriter husband Earl "Peanutt" Montgomery at their Alabama home in 1974.

"For the first four years, our relationship was wonderful," Linda told The ENQUIRER. "In 1976, he asked me to marry him. But because he told me, 'I've been drunk every time I've gotten married,' I wouldn't go ahead with it. He was always drinking."

They continued to live together in seven different homes, and Peanutt, who wrote over 70 songs for George, told The ENQUIRER: "George and Linda were married under common law and they were never divorced – in my mind that makes George a bigamist."

The singer – who had 14 No. 1 country hits, including "I Always Get Lucky with You" and "Yesterday's Wine" – almost started a family with Linda.

"In 1978, I was pregnant with twins, but I miscarried," she revealed. The couple's relationship deteriorated, and in 1981 George met Nancy while on tour. Soon they were living together, and Linda was out of his life. The four-times-wed singer confirmed his relationship with Linda in his autobiography "I Lived to Tell It All," and admits: "I didn't know that Alabama acknowledged common-law marriages."

Years after their split, when Linda was planning to remarry, she says a judge told her she needed to be officially divorced. She figured she already was because she'd signed what she thought to be a divorce decree after they broke up.

"George's lawyers had me sign a blank sheet of paper, telling me it was for my divorce decree," Linda claimed. "I just wanted to get on with my life, so I signed it."

"Later, I saw they had filled it in with a statement that I had never been married to George, either through a ceremony or by common law. But that was false. We definitely had a common-law marriage under Alabama law – and we are still married to this day!"

Thomas Jonathan "Stonewall" Jackson
(January 21, 1824 - May 10, 1863) is widely considered one of the most skilled tactical commanders in U.S.
military history, and stands alongside Robert E. Lee as the most famous Confederate generals of the Civil War.

Jackson graduated from West Point in 1842, and began his military career in the Mexican-American war in 1846. But it was in 1861, at the

He would be a major influence at

KIM'S BIZARRE BABY BUMP

'Fake pregnancy' outrage
as STAR STANDS TO MAKE STAGGERING $16 MILLION

Is Kim just scheming to net a multimillion-dollar payday and repair
her image?

NO BUMP!

FEB. 28, 2013

KIM KARDASHIAN claims to be five months pregnant, but a bombshell ENQUIRER investigation suggests the reality diva could be faking her pregnancy in a shocking ploy to net a multimillion-dollar payday and to repair her battered image.

As startling photographs show, Kim's baby bump seems to change size and position – and sometimes even disappear – as the 32-year-old beauty travels around the country and the globe.

A source close to Kim believes the star might have hatched a sensational scheme with her money-hungry momager Kris Jenner to fake her pregnancy while secretly having a surrogate mom carry a baby for her and her lover Kanye West.

MARCH 15, 2013

BIG BUMP!

Some of Kim K's followers are crying foul on online message boards because "one minute she is about to burst and the next minute she is flat as a pancake." They think she's wearing a prosthetic belly either to get attention or make a fortune

6 DAYS LATER... NO BUMP!
MARCH 21, 2013

THEN THE BUMP IS BACK!
MARCH 24, 2013

Is someone else carrying Kanye's baby?

"How convenient is it that Kim got pregnant just as she was making a mad push to wrap up her ongoing divorce from Kris Humphries?" the source said. "Now Kris is claiming the delay in granting a divorce is stressing Kim and the unborn baby. A fake pregnancy cleans up a lot of problems all at once and garners Kim sympathy."

"It also would be an insane coincidence that Kim just so happened to get pregnant soon after she learned the girlfriend of her ex-boyfriend Reggie Bush – Lilith Avagyan – is pregnant."

"Best of all, for someone who's always cooking up

Kim's mom
Kris Jenner

new moneymaking schemes, Kim stands to earn a windfall from her pregnancy."

Insiders estimate Kim, who is 200 pounds and growing, could earn a whopping $16 million from baby product endorsements, a birth special for the E! network and even a post-birth weight-loss deal for a big-name diet company.

"Momager Kris has to be licking her chops thinking of the money she could potentially bring in by exploiting a Kim K baby, as well as a TV special and a post-birth weight-loss deal with a diet company like Jenny Craig," a source says.

However, a friend says: "You'll never see a bloody birth on TV – like the way her sister Kourtney did it. Kim is far too vain to let herself be filmed at such a vulnerable moment."

Suspensions of a pregnancy hoax have ignited a firestorm of speculation on the Internet that Kim isn't carrying her rapper beau Kanye's baby and is instead using a prosthetic belly insert, just as singer Beyonce was once accused of doing.

"If the pregnancy is fake, Kim has a built-in excuse to let her figure go and gain some weight, enjoying the fattening foods she truly loves."

Shocking telltale pictures seem to show that Kim is duping her legions of fans – with her belly bump seeming to play here-today, gone-tomorrow.

While The ENQUIRER is not convinced Kim is faking her pregnancy, some of her followers are crying foul on online message boards.

One raged: "I am sorry but I don't think this woman is pregnant! Her bump changes sizes and it's not the clothes! One minute she is about to burst and the next minute she is flat as a pancake...I guess she will do ANYTHING for attention."

One writer flat-out charged: "She's pulling a Beyonce!" – referring to the false accusations in 2011 that Beyonce faked her pregnancy by wearing a prosthetic bump.

During an infamous TV interview, Beyonce's baby bump appeared to collapse when she sat down, sparking speculation that to preserve her sensational figure, she secretly hired a surrogate to carry the baby she had with her husband Jay-Z. Beyonce denied the rumor.

NOW FANS ARE HAVING A FIELD DAY pointing to additional tip-offs that Kim's pregnancy could be an outrageous fake, like when she was apparently caught drinking alcohol twice, a strict no-no for moms-to-be.

The first time was during an October taping of "Kourtney & Kim Take Miami," when Kim appears to be drinking and sister Khloe chimes in: "It's a girls' night. Let's have some drinks. It's a celebration any time Kim is drinking and hanging out."

Then, on March 17, Khloe posted a picture on her Instagram account showing Kim swigging what appears to be white wine, while Khloe and brother Rob toast with mixed drinks.

If Kim is involved in a pregnancy sham, it would be one of the most outrageous schemes ever. But the source adds: "I wouldn't put something as crazy as faking a pregnancy for publicity and financial gain past Kim and her crafty mom. They'd do anything for more fame and money!"

The showbiz legend is an emotional and physical wreck, say sources

Cher is concerned about sons Elijah Blue and Chaz (right)

CHER is stressed out over a ton of problems, and friends fear she's in danger of suffering a heart attack!

Between her long-delayed album, son Elijah Blue's ongoing struggle with heroin addiction, and transgender son Chaz's battle of the bulge, the 66-year-old showbiz legend is an emotional and physical wreck, sources say.

"Cher is under incredible strain, and her health is suffering because of it," a source told THE ENQUIRER.

"Everything came to a head a few weeks ago when she was home alone and started feeling pain in her chest that shot down her left arm."

Well aware that's a common heart attack symptom, a terrified Cher called Chaz, said the source.

"CHER CRIED THAT SHE THOUGHT SHE was having a heart attack," the source revealed. "Luckily, Chaz kept his cool. He told his mom to call an ambulance and then lie down and take a few deep breaths."

"But Cher refused to call for help, so Chaz sent a friend over to spend the day with her."

The pain eventually faded, but Cher did seek medical advice, added the source.

"Cher's doctors told her it was probably a combination of stress and indigestion that she mistook for chest pain," said the source.

"But it was a close call. Chaz is begging Cher to scale back her work schedule and rethink her plan to go on tour after her album is released. Chaz, as well as Cher's friends, worry she's at high risk for a heart attack."

The Oscar-winning "Moonstruck" star first began battling serious health woes in the late '80s when she was diagnosed with Epstein-Barr virus. She's also struggled with diverticulitis, a digestive disorder.

Meanwhile, as THE ENQUIRER has recently reported, Cher is distraught that Elijah, 36, is boozing again after years of sobriety. Now she's wracked by fears that the former junkie will go back on heroin.

Chaz's yo-yo dieting is another huge worry, sources say. While the 44-year-old transgender activist recently shed 50 pounds thanks to mixed martial arts workouts, he once busted the scales at 345 pounds. He's also suffered from an addiction to painkillers.

"Of course Cher is thrilled that Chaz is on a health kick, but his weight is a constant struggle," said the source.

"Cher can't stop worrying about him, and the possibility that Chaz could slip back into drug abuse."

Adding to her woes, the release of Cher's latest album — a long-gestating labor of love that features a duet with Lady Gaga — has been delayed from March to September.

"Cher wants to remain edgy and relevant, but she should be kicking back and enjoying her twilight years," said the source. "At her current pace, she's going to have a massive heart attack and maybe even put herself in an early grave."

CARRIE ANN'S SECRET HEARTACHE

BEHIND her megawatt smile and glittery gown, Carrie Ann Inaba was hiding a painful secret from "Dancing with the Stars" viewers during the show's March 18 premiere.

Her beloved father – 73-year-old Rodney Yoshimitsu Inaba – had died just days earlier after a brave battle with tongue and colon cancer.

Sources say the Hawaiian tour operator suffered two heart attacks during his final years, but he courageously soldiered on.

"CARRIE ANN WORE A BLACK dress to honor the memory of her father, and it was all she could do to hold back the tears," said an insider. "But she decided that being there was what her father would have wanted. Now, she's decided to dedicate the rest of the season to him. And she's thinking about performing a dance routine on the show in her father's memory."

“He wants Jen to see what she’s missing”

BRADLEY ROBBING THE CRADLE!

Hunk dating 20-year-old model to MAKE JENNIFER LAWRENCE JEALOUS

“HANGOVER” star Bradley Cooper’s latest Girl of the Month is young enough to be his daughter!

The 38-year-old lady-slayer recently denied reports of a relationship with his “Silver Linings Playbook” co-star Jennifer Lawrence, who’s only 22, saying he’s “old enough to be her father.” But now he’s seeing an even YOUNGER woman – 20-year-old British model Suki Waterhouse.

What’s more, sources say he’s using the beautiful Brit to make Oscar winner Jennifer jealous.

“Jennifer is Hollywood’s hottest actress and everybody wants a piece of her, including Bradley,” an insider told The ENQUIRER.

“He feels the only way to grab her attention while she’s off filming the ‘Hunger Games’ sequel is to be photographed with an even hotter – and younger – model. He wants Jen to

She was devastated. Her whole world came to a crashing halt

On her Facebook page, Carrie Ann wrote that her dad, nicknamed "Uncle Rod" on the Big Island, "had a huge heart and an unfiltered mouth, and that made for a wonderful adventure called life."

This isn't the first time the 45-year-old "DWTS" judge's family has been plagued by cancer. In 2008, Carrie Ann's mother, now 73, was diagnosed with Stage 3 breast cancer.

"SHE WAS DEVASTATED," SAID the insider. "Her whole world came to a crashing halt. She knew the statistics, and was worried that her mom wouldn't make it. But after a mastectomy, chemotherapy and radiation, she did. Sadly, her father was not so lucky."

Although it was a tough decision to appear on the "DWTS" premiere, Carrie Ann got through it like a champ before heading to Hawaii to say her final goodbye to her departed dad.

She shared with fans: "In honor of my father, I chose to do the first show...because in my heart, I know he would have wanted it that way."

see what she's missing." Bradley was first linked to Suki in London when the two were snapped leaving the Elle Style Awards together on Feb. 12.

Then the hunk reportedly flew the blonde beauty from England to Boston, where he is filming a new movie. On March 18, they were spotted enjoying a stroll near his film set.

"She is a self-professed tomboy and a free spirit, just like Jennifer," revealed an insider. "But he's still pining for Jen."

FORTUNATELY, BRADLEY WON'T have to wait long to get another shot at his once and future co-star. Jennifer is also cast in his yet-to-be-titled flick and is slated to join him on the set soon. Since his brief marriage to actress Jennifer Esposito in 2006, Bradley has become one of Hollywood's most eligible bachelors, dating a string of beauties, including Renee Zellweger. But none of his relationships has lasted long, and the insider figures that Suki is also likely to be gone in a flash.

"Thanks to her relationship with Bradley, she'll get the exposure she needs to help jump-start her budding acting career," said the insider. "But if she's looking for anything more, she'll be left with a broken heart."

BILLY RAY CYRUS is begging his wild-child daughter Miley to call off her upcoming wedding to Aussie hunk Liam Hemsworth.

Amid reports that the "Hunger Games" hottie cheated on Miley – and fears that Liam used the former Disney star to boost his career – the "Achy Breaky Heart" crooner has launched a campaign to convince his daughter to dump Liam before she gets her heart broken.

"BILLY RAY SEES the writing on the wall," said a source. "He's fed up with the disrespectful way Liam treats Miley by constantly flirting with other women in front of her."

"He's had deep reservations about Liam from the start, because when Miley hooked up with him, she was the big star and he was an unknown in America."

"Billy Ray thinks Liam hitched his wagon to Miley and used her fame to turn himself into an A-list actor. He feels so strongly about it that he told Miley he'll boycott the wedding if she goes forward with it."

Miley, 20, and Liam, 23, who first began dating in 2009, hit a rough patch in recent weeks after he was caught getting cozy with "Mad Men" siren January Jones at a pre-Oscars party in late February. Rumors about an impending split began to swirl in early March when Liam jetted off to his home turf in Australia before continuing on to Asia for work projects.

Meanwhile, Miley was spotted without her engagement ring but squashed breakup reports by claiming that the sparkler was getting repaired. Then, on March 20, Miley tweeted a photo of herself wearing the ring – and Liam was spotted back at LAX.

But even if Miley and Liam are patching things up, the same can't be said for the tense relationship between her fiancé and father.

"Billy Ray won't stand by and watch Miley get her heart broken," added the source. "He's praying she takes his advice before she really gets hurt."

Lewinsky appeared svelte at a friend's birthday celebration in London on March 19

HEAD-TO-TOE PLASTIC SURGERY for Bill Clinton's intern

MONICA BEFORE

Lewinsky has always struggled with her weight and finances. The transformation could be her big ticket!

MONICA'S $100,000 MAKEOVER

AMERICA's most infamous White House intern, Monica Lewinsky is planning to parlay an appearance on the makeover reality show "The Swan" into a big comeback that will net her millions, say sources.

Lewinsky is said to be in talks with the return of the controversial FOX show, which turns "ugly ducklings" into "beautiful swans" and pays for extensive plastic surgery procedures along with counseling, dental work and personal training.

"Monica has big plans – books, speaking engagements, a documentary and even a clothing line," said a close source. "And she wants to look her best for her return to the limelight."

Prominent plastic surgeons who have studied recent photos of the slimmed-down 39-year-old tell The ENQUIRER that she may have already started on her laundry list of procedures.

Monica – who sources say once crushed the scales at nearly 300 pounds – turned up looking relatively svelte at socialite Heather Kerzner's birthday celebration in London on March 19, joining luminaries including royal rebel Sarah Ferguson – better known as The Duchess of York – and her daughters Beatrice, 24, and Eugenie, 23.

Dressed in an all-black outfit, Monica looked so much thinner that pals believe she may have already gone under the knife. And medical experts – who have not treated Lewinsky – agree.

"It appears she lost weight but may also have had surgical procedures to offset the saggy side effects," Dr. Jeffrey Spiegel, a prominent cosmetic surgeon from Boston, told The ENQUIRER.

He lists $500 in Botox injections to her forehead, about $1,500 for filler injections in her cheeks, and up to $5,000 for liposuction on her neck, as procedures she may have undergone.

Dr. Michael Diaz, a board-certified plastic surgeon from Melbourne, Fla., added: "It looks as though she's had, at minimum, chin liposuction and possibly a neck-lift, which would cost about $3,000."

And celebrity plastic surgeon Dr. Tony Youn, who has not treated Monica, tallied up what he thought her wish list would be. It includes $25,000 worth of liposuction, another $20,000 to tighten up her skin after the lipo, $2,000 for lip enhancement, $1,000 for earlobe shortening, $2,000 in filler injections, a $15,000 tummy tuck and $10,000 for a nose job.

"ROUND IT OUT WITH CELLULITE treatments for $3,000, an arm-lift for $10,000 and facial chemical peels and laser treatments for $2,000," Dr. Youn told The ENQUIRER.

Monica, whose romps in the White House with then-President Bill Clinton shot her to infamy in the 1990s, has struggled with both her weight and finances since then. But, as The ENQUIRER reported, she's looking for a big payday by revealing shocking new secrets about her affair with Clinton in a bombshell new memoir.

Said the close source: "Monica's attitude now is, 'Watch out, world! You ain't seen nothing yet. There's going to be a whole new me very soon!'"

HIGH-FLYING CRIME BUSTER

David Zehntner, below, with the red trailer that was stolen from his LaBelle, Fla., home as he watched from above

Pilot gets BIRD'S-EYE VIEW OF CROOK robbing his house

“I saw a guy walking around our house, looking in the windows”

PILOT David Zehntner and his wife, Berna, are used to having a bird's-eye view of the world.

The owners of two homes – one in Franklin, N.C., and the other in LaBelle, Fla. – the couple routinely shuttle from one house to the other aboard David's Cessna 182.

And that's exactly what they were doing on New Year's Eve when, from 800 feet above their home, Berna noticed something wasn't quite right down below.

David, 56, a retired auto parts worker, explained: “Our approach path to land at LaBelle Airport takes us right over our home, and as we were coming in to land, my wife said: ‘Honey, there's somebody in our driveway.’”

DROPPING DOWN TO 500 FEET TO GET A CLOSER look, David could clearly see a silver pickup truck with a white camper parked in front of his house.

“I was immediately suspicious because we didn't know anyone who had a truck like that,” he said.

Dropping down to 300 feet, he circled around again.

“I saw a guy walking around our house, looking in the windows, checking the doors, like he was scoping out the place to see if he could get in,” said David. “It wasn't anyone we knew.”

David thought that the buzzing airplane making circles around the house would be enough to scare away the would-be burglar.

“We were so close that I could see he had a handlebar mustache,” said David. “He actually stopped to look up at us.”

Rather than flee the scene, the stranger boldly hitched the Zehntner's 16-foot-long red trailer, which had been parked in their driveway, to his truck and drove off!

Pilot Zehntner with his wife, Berna, who also witnessed the theft

“My wife and I were both stunned,” he said. “We just couldn't believe it.”

Unable to call 911 from their noisy cockpit, the Zehntners followed the thief until they knew which way he was headed.

“LaBelle is a small place, and there are only two ways you can leave,” David explained. “You either take Highway 80 or Highway 29. Both are long roads, and they don't have many places you can turn off. So I waited until I saw which way he'd go. He turned onto 80 and I thought, OK, I've got him.”

By then, the Zehntners were only a half-mile from the LaBelle airport. David quickly landed and called 911. Within 30 minutes, police caught up with the alleged thief, 59-year-old Gary Robert Haines of Virginia.

He's been charged with grand theft and released on bond while awaiting trial. He faces up to 15 years behind bars if convicted.

And, of course, David and Berna got their trailer back.

“People have said, ‘How stupid can this guy be?’” added David. “He steals a trailer while somebody in a plane is buzzing around right above him. How on earth did he think he was going to get away with it?”

Tom's fury over Katie's

Tom is fit to be tied, says an insider

■ Holmes gets revenge by flaunting her body
■ Cruise tries to control her...again! – SAY PALS

AN irate Tom Cruise is upset with his ex Katie Holmes over her steamy poses in a series of eye-popping photos, sources say.

The doe-eyed beauty let it all hang out in a sizzling new ad campaign in which she's made to look naked and barely covering her breasts with her hands.

Besides that, 34-year-old Katie got wet and wild on the cover of the April issue of "Allure" magazine, appearing to be topless and dripping wet with a sultry, come-hither look on her face.

"I think Tom is fit to be tied over Katie's red-hot new image," an insider told The ENQUIRER. "It is sure to burn him up because he probably thinks Katie is deliberately trying to rub his nose in her sassy single-girl persona.

"It seems as if Katie's trying to get back at Tom for forcing her to live under his controlling ways for so long.

"The pictures might also be a way of Katie pointing a finger in Tom's face and saying, 'Eat your heart out, buddy – this is what you're missing!'"

Katie's provocative poses made worldwide headlines, and the 50-year-old "Mission: Impossible" hunk read her the riot act for putting herself on public display like that, says the source. Tom is likely to be concerned about her sweet motherly image going to pot and their 6-year-old daughter Suri being embarrassed by the photographs, according to the source.

"The bottom line is that I'm sure it galls Tom to no end that he doesn't have the power to call the shots with Katie anymore," says the source.

The former "Dawson's Creek" cutie shredded her girl-next-door image by appearing in various states of undress in an ad campaign for the upscale Brazilian jeweler H. Stern.

In one photo, the "Batman Begins" beauty appears to be slipping out of her bikini top, while other shots

KATIE CONFIRMS ENQUIRER LAW SCHOOL SCOOP

ALLURE" magazine thought it had a big scoop when Katie Holmes revealed in its new issue that she's considering trading acting for law school – but we broke the news months ago.

Way back on Jan. 24, The ENQUIRER revealed online and in print that the brunette beauty's next starring role may be in a court room.

Insiders told us that the 34-year-old mom expressed a keen interest in law during her divorce from Tom Cruise.

Meanwhile, her acting career is in the doldrums after her Broadway play "Dead Accounts" bombed, and her fashion line Holmes & Yang has also been struggling.

With time on her hands, Katie pondered her future in the April issue of "Allure."

"Well, my brother and father are attorneys, and – we'll see," said the actress. "I like the practical thinking of attorneys."

ENQUIRER EXCLUSIVE

MODEL BEHAVIOR: Katie got wet and wild in the April issue of "Allure" magazine, appearing to be topless with a sultry, come-hither look on her face show her flaunting her sexy body.

"The photos in the H. Stern ads are extremely hot," noted the source.

"If Katie were still married to Tom, there's no way he'd have signed off on them. Katie had to know that releasing the photos now would drive Tom crazy."

Katie has posed for two previous H. Stern ad campaigns, but neither was as sex-sational as her latest photos.

AND IN ANOTHER SLAP IN THE FACE to her ex, Katie graces the cover of fashion magazine "Allure" in swimwear by Agent Provocateur – a high-end label that also sells lingerie popular with celebrities.

"In the 'Allure' magazine photos, Katie has tousled hair, wet skin and smudged makeup," said the source.

"It seems as if she's trying to recreate the look of a woman who's just emerged from a wild lovemaking session."

Both the "Allure" and H. Stern photos are Katie's way of telling Cruise that she's not under his thumb anymore, said the source.

"It seems to me that Tom always picked out drab, boring clothes for Katie, and she is sick of being viewed as a frumpy soccer mom," explained the source.

"I think she's ready to cut loose and show the world she's a sexy and vibrant young woman who's on the hunt for a hot guy."

Meanwhile, Cruise has been coping with a litany of problems.

As The ENQUIRER has reported, the "Top Gun" star has been battling the stress of dealing with fallout from a blockbuster new book about his controversial Scientology religion.

Cruise also misses Suri terribly, his love life has hit a brick wall, and he's been working nonstop.

Meanwhile, Katie's career had stalled during her marriage but her prospects are now on the upswing.

She's considering following in the footsteps of her lawyer father Martin and heading to law school, she recently wrapped a Broadway play and she has several movie projects in the works.

"Katie likes having regained control of her life, and Tom's tirade fell totally flat with her," said the source. "In fact, the ad campaign and 'Allure' pictures are just the tip of the iceberg. Katie is looking for edgy acting roles, and she's going to continue to flaunt her killer body – whether Tom approves or not!"

"FAMILY GUY" creator Seth MacFarlane ditched his girlfriend Emilia Clarke because of her un-family-like NUDE scene on Broadway – which sources say ruled her out as a potential wife.

The Academy Awards host couldn't deal with the gorgeous "Game of Thrones" actress appearing nightly in the buff as Holly Golightly in the new stage version of "Breakfast at Tiffany's," an insider told The ENQUIRER.

"Everyone thinks Seth is this wild-and-crazy playboy, but he's really conservative when it comes to the women he wants to get serious about," explained the insider. "He was getting ribbed by his friends about Emilia's butt-naked scene, and even family members were calling to tell him they couldn't wait to see his girlfriend in the flesh. The entire world began making a huge fuss."

"Seth's no prude, but he is old-fashioned in some respects. And all the 'birthday suit' buzz got to be too much for him."

Some sources say the relationship ran into trouble because Seth is rooted in California while 25-year-old English-born Emilia films "Game of Thrones" in Europe.

Emilia Clarke and Cory Michael Smith in "Breakfast at Tiffany's" on Broadway

But the final straw for Seth was her full-frontal bathtub scene that had frenzied

Broadway patrons reaching for their cameras.

And the brunette beauty is no stranger to nude scenes.

SHE ROCKETED TO FAME PLAYING sexy blonde Daenerys Targaryen in her popular HBO medieval fantasy series, which required her to do steamy scenes.

But 39-year-old Seth, who wants to get married and start a family, apparently wants a "no-baggage girl" to take home to the family.

"Seth is no saint and clearly took advantage of his fame by dating hot actresses and supermodels," said the source. "But now he's looking to settle down, and the last thing he wants is a wife who's got naked photos just a mouse-click away."

GREEN TEA MAY FIGHT ALZHEIMER'S

 In a promising advance, scientists have discovered a potential benefit of a molecule in green tea that can prevent changes in the brain associated with Alzheimer's disease.

The onset of Alzheimer's is linked to the formation of protein-based amyloid plaques in the brain. But a study conducted by University of Michigan researchers found that the green tea molecule, called EGCG, not only prevented formation of this plaque, it also broke down existing ones.

"A lot of people are very excited about this molecule," says UM expert Mi Hee Lim.

These initial lab findings are encouraging and have paved the way for further research.

Don't pass THE SALT

BY KATHLEEN K. O'NEILL

 Warning! Ordinary table salt could be a key factor behind an increase in autoimmune diseases, including multiple sclerosis.

Experimenting with mice, Yale University researchers found that salt created and worsened immune system responses associated with autoimmune diseases.

"Humans were genetically selected for conditions in sub-Saharan Africa, where there was no salt. Today, Western diets all have high salt content, and that has led to an increase in hypertension and perhaps autoimmune disease as well," notes Dr. David Hafler, chairman of Yale's neurology department.

Human studies of how salt affects autoimmune diseases will be next.

ANOREXIA advance

 Using a new approach for the first time, Canadian scientists implanted pacemaker-like devices into the brains of six women suffering from severe anorexia, offering them a last hope of survival.

None of the women had responded to previous eating disorder treatments, but with the deep brain stimulation, five of the six were gaining weight three months after getting the implant. After nine months, three of the six maintained higher weights.

"The finding of improvements in mood and anxiety in patients who were still underweight is especially striking," says Dr. Andres Lozano, a neurosurgeon at Toronto Western Hospital.

 There's a lot you can do to minimize pain in your life, says Sue Hitzmann, author of "The MELT Method" (below).

Hitzmann, who's designed a revolutionary approach to reducing pain and increasing longevity, also offers these simple but effective good-health tips:

■ Drink a glass of water immediately upon rising in the morning and continue to drink small amounts throughout the day.

■ Get a good night's sleep. Make sure your bedroom is quiet, pitch-black and free of electronics to get the most restorative sleep possible.

■ Leave your chair for at least two minutes every hour. Stretch and walk around.

MELT AWAY PAIN

 Exercise and you'll sleep better! Vigorous exercisers are almost twice as likely as non-exercisers to enjoy a good night's sleep almost every night, according to a new poll by the National Sleep Foundation. Lack of sleep affected couch potatoes more than their exercising counterparts. And the risk of sleep apnea, when breathing stops and starts repeatedly during sleep, was twice as high among non-exercisers.

"If you are inactive, adding a 10-minute walk every day could improve your likelihood of a good night's sleep," says sleep researcher Max Hirshkowitz. Work your way up to running and swimming for even better results.

CRYPTOGRAM QUOTES

FAMOUS QUOTES FROM YOUR FAVORITE PEOPLE

Cryptograms are coded messages. To solve the Cryptogram, each coded letter must be replaced by the answer letter in the box overhead. When you solve the code for a letter, write the answer letter in the box everywhere the coded letter appears. Look for common words and letter patterns to break the code. Words like AND, I, THE and A are found frequently. Common word endings are ING, S and E.

The Moment (New Show!)

Thursday, April 11, 10 p.m. ET, USA Network

Ever feel that you gave up your career goals because life took you in another direction? Each week, NFL Super Bowl MVP Kurt Warner gives a person with talent and a dream a chance to train with a veteran pro in their chosen field, followed by the job interview of a lifetime. Tonight, Alabama mom, ex-portrait photographer and sports fan Tracie Marcum is trained by world-renowned sports photographer Lou Jones for an interview with "Sports Illustrated." Can she go from suburban housewife to sports photojournalist in just two weeks? If you think that time has passed you by, take an hour to see "The Moment." It could just change your life.

Hannibal

Thursday, April 11, 10 p.m. ET, NBC

Our favorite cannibal psychiatrist, Dr. Hannibal Lecter (Mads Mikkelsen), returns tonight for a second helping of this smartly scripted and stylishly done serial-killer series. So far, gifted FBI profiler Will Graham (Hugh Dancy) has killed a suspect in an investigation, prompting his team leader, Dr. Jack Crawford (Laurence Fishburne), to send him to FBI-employed psychoanalyst Lecter. Tonight, Will hunts a killer who plants his victims alive to fertilize his mushroom garden. Meanwhile, Lecter tries to get Will to embrace the satisfaction of killing in this extremely clever cat-and-mouse game. Must see moment: the scene in which Lecter cooks dinner for Agent Crawford and tells him it's "pork" loin.

Da Vinci's Demons (New Show!)

Friday, April 12, 10 p.m. ET, STARZ

One of the world's greatest geniuses of all time, artist, inventor, swordsman, lover and dreamer Leonardo da Vinci, is painted as a superman of sorts in this enthralling and intriguing series set in Renaissance Florence. Being able not only to see the future, but also invent it, da Vinci (Tom Riley) quests to uncover the mysteries surrounding his lost mother and the superior knowledge contained in the mythical Book of Leaves. Tonight, 25-year-old Leonardo is commissioned to create a spectacle at an Easter celebration when a delicate truce between Milan and Florence is wrecked. Sexy, thrilling and full of spirit, "Da Vinci's Demons" delivers a grand mixture of historical and mythical entertainment. Hera Hilmar and Laura Haddock also star.

Undercover Boss

Friday, April 12,
8 p.m. ET, CBS

Tonight Tony Wells, top executive for ADT Security Services, goes undercover to keep an eye on his security experts and try his hand at their jobs. He can't make sales without stumbling over his words, and he needs a service technician to help him upgrade a client's security system because he's not good with tools. Clearly he needs the people who work for him as he can't get through the show without them! And he realizes that the hard way in a new episode of this eye-opening series.

★ LOUIE ANDERSON

Heavyweight comic Louie likes to leave 'em laughing – but his real life has been anything but funny. Louie, 60, grew up in what he's called a "dysfunctional family" of 11 kids in St. Paul, Minn., with an "abusive, alcoholic father." One brother was a safecracker, another was homeless, a third a gambler, and a sister who had serious psychological problems. Because of that, he gave them money whenever they asked. The former "Family Feud" host wrote a book about his travails called "The F Word: How to Survive Your Family."

★ KEISHA KNIGHT PULLIAM

Keisha, who played cute little Rudy Huxtable on "The Cosby Show," has spent the past decade getting her TV and movie career back on track. Now 33, she graduated from Spelman College in Atlanta with a degree in sociology, but is perhaps best known these days for winning celebrity editions of "The Weakest Link" and "Fear Factor." In 2009, she played a heroin-addicted prostitute in Tyler Perry's "Madea Goes to Jail," and says she continues to seek "new challenges." Unfortunately, Keisha didn't make a "Splash" with judges – she was eliminated during the show's March 19 premiere.

SCANDALS OF THE DIVING STARS

What celebs making a 'Splash'
ARE HIDING!

What do you get when you mix a rag-tag group of celebrities, a deep-water pool and a trio of Olympic divers and coaches? ABC's new reality series "Splash"! The ENQUIRER dives into the secrets and scandals of the show's cast – and we've uncovered some belly-floppin' whoppers!

★ DRAKE BELL

The former Nickelodeon star and teen heartthrob nearly died in a terrible Dec. 29, 2005, car accident when his classic 1966 Mustang was struck head-on by a truck on Los Angeles' Pacific Coast Highway. He was immediately rushed to a Santa Monica hospital and then transferred to UCLA Medical Center, where he was treated for a host of injuries, including a fractured neck, a jaw broken in three places, six missing teeth and several facial lacerations. Production of "Drake & Josh," which chronicled the adventures of two teens who become stepbrothers, was put on hold while Drake, then 19, recovered. Now 26, Drake has a flourishing music career.

★ KENDRA WILKINSON

In 2004, at age 19, Kendra made waves when she moved into the Playboy Mansion as one of Hugh Hefner's girlfriends. Now married (to former NFL player Hank Baskett) with a young son, Kendra is stirring up controversy on "Splash" with her foul-mouthed tirades! The former "Playboy" model was livid when coach Greg Louganis – a four-time Olympic gold medalist – questioned whether she really had a fear of heights, as she'd claimed. "I don't like him," the 27-year-old hissed. After tossing out a few F-bombs, she continued: "I'm sick of you picking on me, Greg...I'm working on me, not you."

★ KAREEM ABDUL-JABAR

NBA legend Kareem, 65, is diving back into the swim of things on "Splash" after seeing numerous highs and lows in his storied career. The former Los Angeles Lakers great still holds the NBA scoring record of 38,387 points. But at one point, Kareem – who was one the highest-paid players in the game – was broke thanks to a tragic house fire, a messy divorce and a tangled web of bad investments. In July 2000, he was arrested on suspicion of driving under the influence of marijuana – the second time in two years he got his hand slapped for using pot. In 2008, he was diagnosed with chronic myeloid leukemia. Fortunately, he is now cancer-free.

★ NICOLE EGGERT

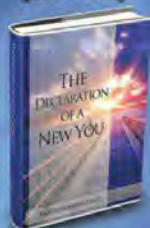

The Former "Baywatch" babe, 41, has battled weight issues for years. In 2009, she ballooned up to 150 pounds, 45 more than she weighed when she played lifeguard Summer Quinn in the early '90s. Nicole did pare off some pounds during her stint on the TV reality show "Celebrity Fit Club" and, today, she's far shapelier. To her credit, the actress has maintained a positive attitude about her weight struggles – and has even poked fun of herself in a hilarious "Baywatch" parody on the comedy website "Funny or Die."

Good for you, Phillip

Phillip Phillips is wise beyond his 22 years, not supporting his free-loading parents ("Idol" Champ Turns Back on Family, March 4). It's time they accept responsibility for their own lives. It appears Phillip is the adult in this scenario, making a truly successful life for himself.

– Rochelle S.,
Charleston, S.C.

Heavy petting

Regarding "Lonely Britney's Gone Fur Crazy" (March 4): There's no way Britney should have left a tiny puppy to roughhouse with her two energetic little boys. I hate to see people get more and more pets they can't care for properly. Come on, Brit, cut down on the pets already!

– Rosemary G., Hatfield, Pa.

Kudos to the beautiful performers who prove you do not have to show cleavage to be gorgeous. Jane Fonda, Sally Field, Barbra Streisand, Adele, Jennifer Aniston and

HOW TO PLAY

You must fill in every empty square in the Sudoku grid. There's no right way of going about this, but there is only ever one solution. The big grid is split into nine mini-grids. There are nine rows running left to right and nine columns running down. In every row, you must have each of the numbers 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8 and 9. These can be in any order. The same applies to columns and mini-grids: place every number 1 through 9 in each column and in each mini-grid.

Acts of kindness

All across the country, every day, good people perform acts of kindness for strangers. Only rarely do they receive recognition for their selfless work. In our ongoing series, The ENQUIRER will put the spotlight on those who care enough to make life better for those around them.

SHOESHINE man Albert Lexie has a lot of soul – and heart.

To help sick kids whose parents can't afford treatment, soft-spoken Albert donates all the tips he makes shining shoes at the Children's Hospital of Pittsburgh.

He's been doing it for more than 30 years, and the donations just passed the $200,000 mark.

"Albert has given away over a third of his lifetime salary. He does it because he loves the kids," said hospital physician Dr. Joseph Carcillo.

The tips that Albert hands over – a hundred or so bucks on a good week – go to the Children's Hospital Free Care Fund, which assists the parents of hospitalized young ones who don't have the means to pay for medical costs.

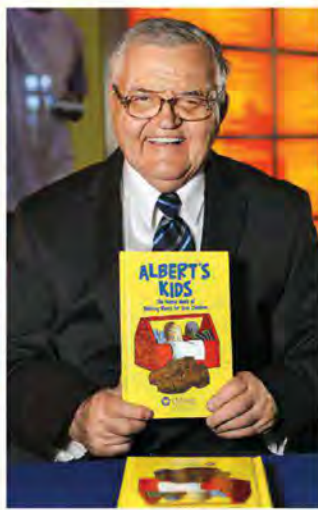

ALBERT, 69, OF MONESSEN, PA., has been shining shoes ever since he hammered together his first shoeshine box at age 14 and charged a quarter a shine.

Since 1981, he's been a familiar figure at Children's Hospital, pushing his purple cart through the halls looking for customers and regularly visiting sick children he calls "Albert's Kids" to offer words of comfort.

Nowadays, a shine costs $5, and Albert said: "Most customers give $6, some of them give $7. I had a doctor who gave me a $50 bill for Christmas."

The ENQUIRER featured Albert in a 2002 article, when his tip donations stood at $74,000. But since our article ran, the shoeshine man with the heart of gold has achieved celebrity status in "Steel City."

When Albert reached a hundred grand in donations, the Foundation for a Better Life featured him on a billboard which read: "Donated $100,000 in tips to help kids. Charity: Pass it on."

He's been honored by veterans groups, his hometown of Monessen and The Caring Institute, and he was inducted into the Frederick Douglass Museum and Hall of Fame for Caring Americans in Washington, D.C.

ALBERT ALSO HELPS TO RAISE money for the Children's Hospital Free Care Fund by shining shoes for free at various Pittsburgh office buildings in exchange for donations.

And he's become an author. He's published "Albert's Kids: The Heroic Work of Shining Shoes for Sick Children," a book that explains why he started donating his tip money when he was deeply touched by a 1981 Children's Hospital Christmas appeal to help unfortunate kids.

The answer is simple.

"They needed the money, I didn't," said Albert. "I just decided that any tip I'd make would go straight to help these little angels. Kids are special to me, and I want these kids to get better."

Of course, proceeds of the book also go to help those ailing children.

Marc Lukasiak, manager of media relations at Children's Hospital, said there is nothing but good in Albert.

"He inspires everybody in the hospital. It's all about his pure love for the kids."
